

Flu Epidemic Hits SJC

By MONIQUE LACOUTURE
and RON TRIPPEL

Do you have a sore throat? Are you running a high temperature or feeling nauseous? If so, you may have already been stricken by the particular strain of flu that has hit the SJC campus these past two weeks.

This "epidemic" started on campus shortly after the Russian flu began making its rounds of the country. Although the virus which has recently invaded Saint Joe's coincides with the outbreak of the Russian flu, the health center has not yet determined that the two are one and the same.

Betty Stoller, registered nurse at the health center, suggests the following steps to be taken by students to minimize the possibility of contracting the flu.

"It is important that the student gets a proper amount of rest," she says. This also implies that you should avoid any prolonged and strenuous activities outdoors such as shoveling snow or jogging.

"At the first sign of a headache or temperature you should take aspirin and drink plenty of fluids; milk, juices, water, and tea are helpful. It is advisable to check in at the health center if your temperature is high," she adds.

A proper and sensible diet from the basic food groups is also an effective measure. Vitamins can be helpful to students who cannot get a sufficient amount of rest or for those who stay up late during the night watching television or studying.

"If your roommate has the flu you should avoid sharing such things as towels, bed linens, blankets, and other similar items," Ms. Stoller recommends. "Also the common courtesy of covering your mouth or nose when you cough or sneeze helps."

When eating in the cafeteria, which is a focal point for all students, sick and well, it is practical not to share your dining utensils, glasses, or cups.

Students have been coming to the health center at the rate of about 40-50 a day, but most are dismissed within 24 hours and given instructions to rest and take medicine. The health center reports only patients who definitely have the Russian flu. Health center records also seem to indicate that the "epidemic" is dying down.

For students who have already been bitten by the flu bug, Ms. Stoller recommends that you come to the health center to be checked. "You should also rest, drink lots of fluids, and take two aspirin every two hours," she says.

"In general, students should eat their regular diet of food with the exception of including more fruit," Ms. Stoller adds. "If vomiting occurs, the student should then adopt a liquid diet."

There are a variety of preliminary symptoms to indicate the beginning of the flu. Head and body aches, chills, sore throats, a running nose, coughs, and a general rotten feeling are just some of the indicators.

If you are feeling ill, regular health center hours are 8-11:30 a.m. and 1-5:30 p.m. on the weekdays and on Saturdays from 8-11 a.m. A nurse will be on duty at all hours.

Visiting hours are from 2-4 p.m. and 7-9 p.m.

SA ELECTIONS

SA elections will be held Mar. 6 and petitions can be obtained from Kent Willmann (Noll 129), Mike Popovich (Gal. 210), Joe Sloyan (Gal. 201), or from the SA offices on third floor Halleck.

Petitions will be available for the offices of president, social vice-president, treasurer, and secretary. Petitions are due no later than noon on Friday, Mar. 3.

Coal Strike Forces Campus Energy Cuts

By MARK QUEBBEMAN

Ken Zawodny, vice-president for business affairs, and Alfred Hentschel, superintendent of buildings and grounds, along with several employees from the powerhouse, met Feb. 15 to discuss the possibility of power cut-backs in response to the request of Otis Bowen, governor of Indiana, that measures be taken to reduce the consumption of coal.

According to Zawodny, these cut-backs were begun last Thursday and involve a two-fold program.

"Phase one entails the reduction of heat by about 20 percent in all non-resident buildings on campus, such as Halleck Center, Alumni Fieldhouse, and the Science Building," says Zawodny. "We also are asking students to voluntarily reduce the amount of hot water used and to reduce the temperature of their rooms."

If the coal situation continues into March, phase two would be implemented.

"Phase two would involve the mandatory reduction of heat in all the dorms," says Zawodny.

Unlike some other schools in the state, Saint Joe's should not be forced to close down. According to Zawodny, there is enough coal stockpiled to last until spring break.

"We've just received 500 tons of coal and will be receiving another 400 tons this week," notes Zawodny.

"This coal is being borrowed from institutions with adequate stockpiles and will be returned later," adds Hentschel.

Zawodny, however, does not expect to be able to get any more coal from these sources.

"All the coal is UMW coal," claims Zawodny, "and these sources are beginning to run out."

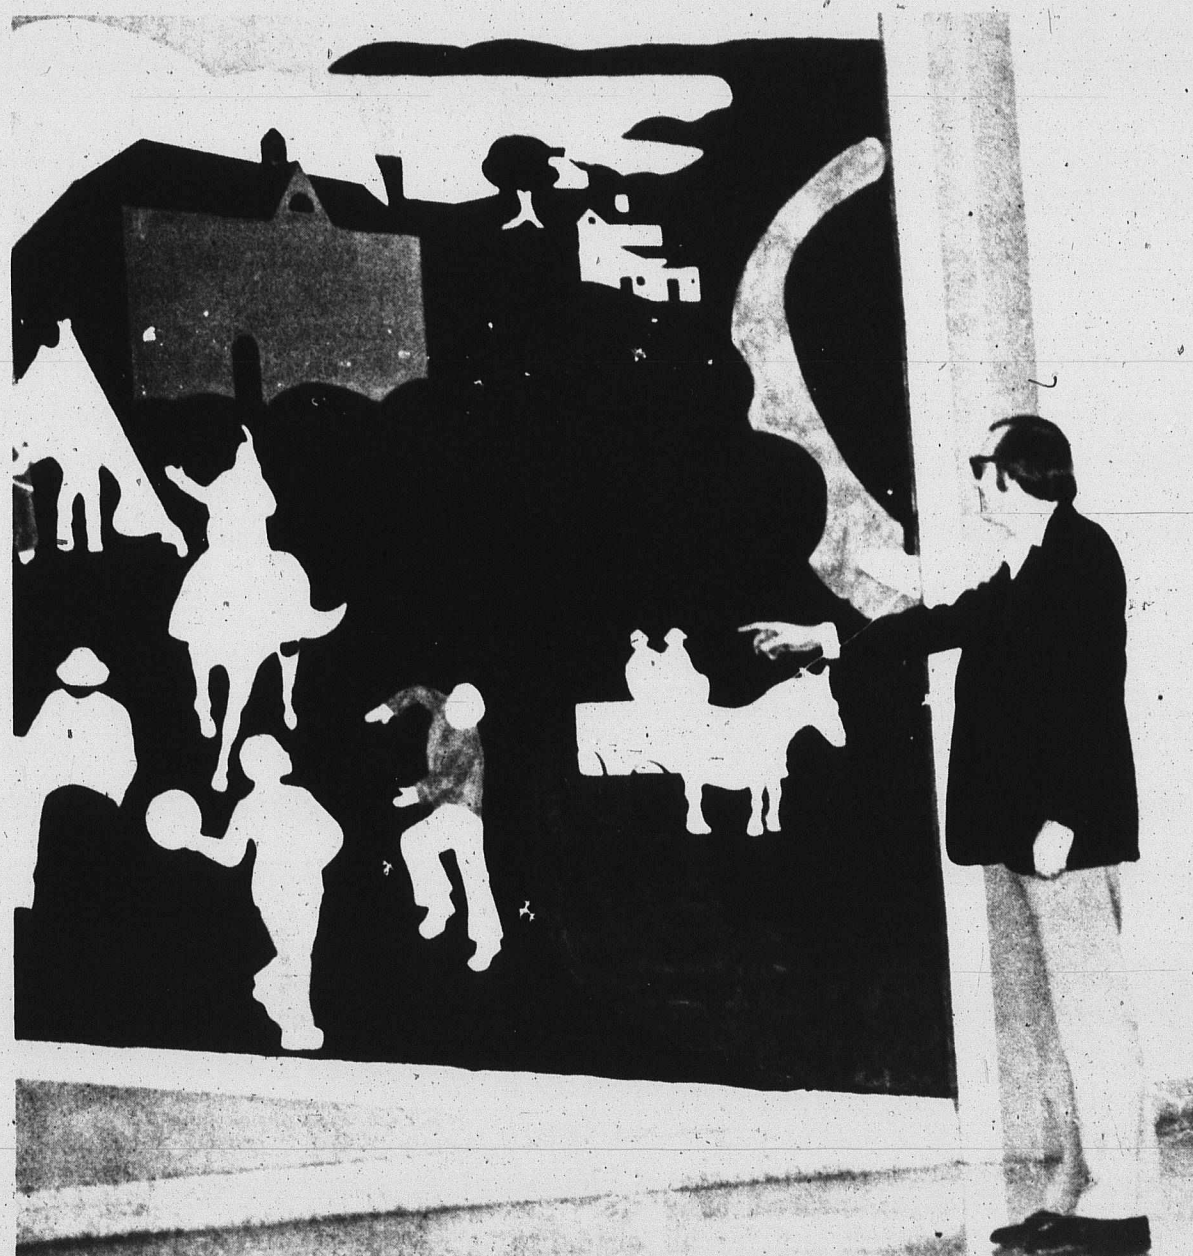

Other problems include the lower quality of coal and the higher cost. The high sulphur content coupled with the high ash content requires more coal to be burned to generate the normal amount of heat. Currently about 24 tons a day is burned.

Despite the lower quality of the coal, a higher price must be paid because of its scarcity. For example, the most recent shipment of coal cost $31 per ton.

Efforts to bargain with the United Mine Workers have thus far been futile. A tentative settlement considered on Feb. 12 was voted down by the UMW bargaining council, 30-6. Among its provisions was a wage and fringe benefit increase of 37 percent.

Attempting to deal with the strike, President Carter met last Friday with the governors of the 12 hardest-hit states, including Indiana. He subsequently granted the governors of Indiana and Ohio the authority to suspend all pollution controls as a coal-saving measure.

Problems with UMW interference with the transportation of coal have caused the Federal Justice Department to order U.S. attorneys, U.S. marshals, and the FBI to "be alert for complaints about violence or attempts to impede movement of coal into critical areas."

Father Lawrence Wyen, assistant professor of English, points to a section of the first mural now being completed by Ms. Nancy Lynch on a wall outside the Halleck Center ballroom.

The Choice Is Yours

Pretty soon, Saint Joe students will be deprived of the right to choose the leaders of student government. And this deprivation won't come from the administration or the faculty, but from the students themselves.

That's right. Students won't have any freedom of choice because of one basic reason—there will be no one to choose from.

Fewer and fewer qualified students are going to run in this and ensuing elections, if the trend that began last year continues.

This year, as last year, the field of candidates to choose from is quite slim. This does not provide much, if any, variety for the student to choose from.

Therefore, all qualified students, who are interested in both the job and the work it entails, should run for election.

Before voting, we suggest that students find out the issues at hand, and examine each candidate closely. And although this may be useless for the number of times it's been said, vote on the basis of qualifications, and not popularity as you always do.

The right of student representation should not be waived or given up, least of all by students.

Praise Overdue

At Saint Joe there is one of many "puma rumors" making the rounds—that no matter what the illness, the Health Center will insist on "putting a cast on it." The flu epidemic that has struck campus in the past few weeks has proved that this, like so many rumors, is a gross exaggeration perpetuated by and through ignorance.

Many of the same students who put down the services that the Health Center provides are also the students who have not been sick, or those who have been sick but who would not visit the center.

All the nurses who work throughout the day and night try to see to the student's comfort and well-being above all. Especially at this time, when so many students were in the Health Center, students should really show their gratitude and appreciation.

Surrounded by sickness, and serving with little or no gratitude at low pay, the nurses in the Health Center must put up with a lot from everyone. Any words of confidence would probably be most appreciated.

One Man's Opinion

Faculty Influence Threatens Students

By RICHARD HIGHBERGER

We all have enemies, or to put it more mildly, persons we don't like or agree with as much as they would like us to. At least we can always find shelter from those persons who pose a threat to us; we can protect ourselves and our individual interests by slipping back within our realm of close friends.

But, there is an enemy in our midst, an enemy as invisible as a virus, but just as powerful and every bit as selective. My friends, this virulent enemy is our very own faculty.

Their primary role of instructing, encouraging, and evaluating the individual student performances is not being questioned. These roles are presently being filled quite adequately.

But the span of their influence today reaches beyond the scope of their concern. It is their privilege to decide how long open house hours may be in effect in student dormitories.

Garrick Roby (so.-WSF) and Kathy Caveney (fr.-Jus.) were two of many students who enjoyed dancing at the Valentine's Day disco held Feb. 14 in the Halleck Center snack bar.

Dear Editor,

They say actions speak louder than words. You can't always believe a person's words; you have to let him prove himself by his actions. This is a story of how a group of individuals proved by their actions what many people have been saying about them for quite awhile.

On Jan. 11, 1978, the Saint Joe basketball team hosted the team from Butler in what has traditionally been a big game for Saint Joe's. Unfortunately, there were more people in the "castle of chaos" from Butler than from Saint Joe's. It was indeed a sad commentary on the spirit existing here.

This fact disturbed some people and, in the hopes of generating some spirit, these individuals, who happened to be from Gallagher Hall, organized themselves and succeeded in their endeavor. The result was the Valpo game, which saw probably the best display of spirit this school has witnessed in some time.

One of the products of this effort by Gallagher Hall was a banner hanging over the east basket proclaiming Gallagher's support for the Pumas. Last weekend that banner was destroyed and replaced with another.

Congratulations Bennett Hall. You've proved it to the entire school.

Sincerely,
Gallagher Hall

Dear Editor,

Let's hear it for student ingenuity. Last week's Valentine's Day Disco was a shining example of what students can accomplish on their own. Although I could not attend myself, due to the flu bug going around at the time, I did hear a lot of praise for the disco during the following day. This was surprising, since students are usually quick to criticize and slow to praise.

The independent student committee responsible for this event deserves many thanks. A lot of hard work must have gone into the planning and operation of such an event.

Yet, with another two months left in the semester, there is still much work ahead for the committee. They have tentatively planned a coffee-house night in the snack bar and have taken a survey on student interests.

But they will need much more than a survey to help them work in your interest; they need your help and ideas to make things work. They also will need student participation and enthusiasm in the events that they will be providing for us.

Let's not let a good thing go to waste. Bring whatever ideas and suggestions you have to them and try to work with them. This will require the joint effort of all students.

A Pleased Puma

Dear Editor,

Suppose a roommate became seriously ill and required immediate medical attention. What would you do if you did not have a car and could not find one?

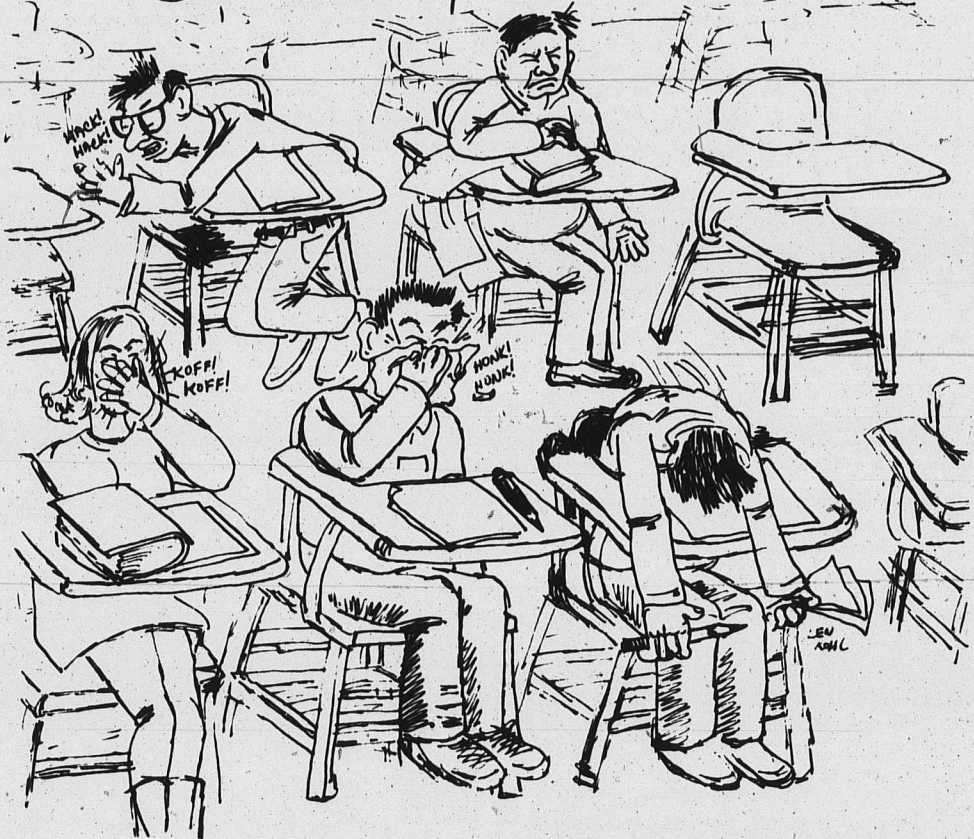

When problems like this arise, there is usually someone or somewhere you can turn to for help. Such was not the case in the early morning hours of Feb. 14.

That night a friend of mine became ill and myself and two other girls on the floor tried in vain to find a ride to take her to the health center. After exhausting all immediate alternatives, we then turned to security for help. We called their office repeatedly in the ensuing half hour, but to no avail. WHERE WAS SECURITY???

While their primary function is not running a taxi service between the dorms and the

The Student Association, recognizing a need to become more realistic, encouraged the faculty to officially extend open house hours to 11 p.m. But, in typical fashion, the faculty chose to ignore the proposal in the spirit of official apathy.

This kind of democracy and majority rule are nothing new to SJC.

When the faculty, with the encouragement of the Athletic Committee, chose to reinstate three of our basketball players, they, like a virus, took advantage of persons in a weakened position. In this situation, academic standards for intercollegiate athletes were lowered to match the requirement for all students to merely satisfy a special-interest group.

Cagers Hoping For NCAA Bid

With the NCAA playoff season just around the corner, men's basketball coach George Waggoner has been doing some heavy thinking about Saint Joe's chances for a post-season bid.

"We're being considered for a spot in the NCAA playoffs," says Waggoner. "If we can win all our last games, we should get it."

Western Illinois (Saturday) will be one of the "must" games, and is also the Pumas' last home game. On Tuesday the Pumas travel to DePauw for a rematch in the final game of the regular season.

Saint Joseph's has already clinched a second-place finish in the Indiana Collegiate Conference with a 4-2 record. Butler finished first, while Indiana Central and Valparaiso are battling for the lower spots.

Last Wednesday's 74-59 victory over Indiana Central was the "clincher" for SJC.

Earlier this month, the Pumas split a road trip with a victory over Valpo Feb. 8, and a loss to Butler Feb. 11. Completing a season's sweep of the Crusaders, Saint Joseph's beat Valpo 75-73, while Butler beat SJC, 76-60.

Franklin became Saint Joe's 15th victim as the Grizzlies were beaten 80-74 last Saturday. Sims tallied 24 points and Tony Smith had 13 points and ten rebounds.

Dave Downey ignited the Puma charge with seven overtime points in an 82-74 victory over DePauw Monday night. Dennis Thomas scored a team-high 16 points, while Kevin Sims and Jim Michels each bagged 14.

Today, tomorrow and Saturday, Saint Joseph's women's team is hosting the 1978 IAAW Regional Tournament at Alumni Fieldhouse. The two top tournament teams will go on to the IAIAW State Tournament to be held Mar. 3-4 at Anderson (Ind.) College.

Saint Joseph's battles Valparaiso today at 2 p.m. and will face Indiana-Purdue tomorrow at noon.

Momentum has been on Saint Joe's side as the team has won six straight games. The Pumas won conference games versus Valparaiso and Butler Feb. 8 and 11 respectively.

St. Mary's fell victim to Saint Joseph's 52-49 Feb. 12. Voreis led the way with 20 points, followed by Flynn with 12. Regina Fisher pulled down 17 rebounds in this victory.

Northern Illinois became Saint Joseph's seventh victim in a row, as the Pumas pulled off a 59-53 victory Friday.

Saint Joseph's will close its season with a home game versus Indiana State Feb. 27.

Sports Roundup

Track Team Awaits ICC Meet

INDOOR TRACK

Coach Dave Smith's track team has been practicing and working hard toward meets. The men are preparing for the ICC meet to be held at Ball State Mar. 2.

Smith also announced the opening dates for the spring track seasons for both the men's and women's teams as Mar. 24, and Apr. 1, respectively.

GYMNASTICS

Women's gymnastics opened its season with a third-place finish at George Williams College in suburban Chicago Feb. 11. Illness to squad members hampered the Pumas from finishing any higher.

"We would have been well outscored by George Williams anyway," coach Rosalie Wendling says. "But we would have been even with Valparaiso had we a full squad."

SJC had three members place first in team events—Colleen Lamb (fr.-Jus.) on the vault with a score of 6.05, Beth Janecke (fr.-Jus.) on the uneven parallel bars scored 1.85, and Lisa Elliott (jr.-Hal.) on the balance beam and floor exercises with scores of 5.05 and 4.7 respectively.

Last Saturday, the squad placed second in a three-way meet with Ball State and Valparaiso at Valpo with a 49.10 score. Laurie Shover and Lisa Elliott placed first in different events for Saint Joseph's.

WRESTLING

Saint Joseph's team has had its share of troubles this season. The Pumas have yet to record a victory, and were recently beaten by both Valparaiso 54-2 and Indiana Central 47-0 at home last Thursday.

SJC suffered a double defeat in a match held at Manchester College last Saturday. The Pumas, narrowly beaten by Manchester, 24-21, then were trounced by Wabash, 48-3.

Saint Joe's will conclude its 1978 season with the ICC meet this weekend at Indiana Central.

IM 'Cellar Teams' Prove Losers Can Be Winners

By RON TRIPPEL

Every sport on any level has its share of successful teams which grab the lion's share of attention. But the not-so-successful teams deserve some mention for without these teams sports could not exist—somebody has to lose.

IM bowling division II "cellar teams," the Lucky Strikes and Halas Hotshots, share records of 8-21-1 but will play a major role in determining the playoff teams in their division. On Mar. 7 the Hotshots will play the Silver Pins, who are currently fighting for a playoff berth, while the division-leading Luders face the Lucky Strikes the following night.

Holding the worst record in either division, 7-21, the No-Names play three division I playoff contenders in the last weeks of the season.

Despite a record of 1-1-2, the Drexel Six-Left have proven themselves with ties against the East Seifert Ice Pak and the Gallagher Slashers during the season.

With IM floor hockey action temporarily suspended due to the lack of equipment—five hockey sticks broken in one game earlier this month—the standings remain the same.

Proving that a losing team can be a winner, the Bennett Pzazz, paced by their leading scorer Lamar Simmons (jr.-Noll), have beaten both the Merlini Units and the Gallagher Flaming Youth. The Pzazz now own a 2-5 record in A league basketball.

On the other side of the coin is an appropriately-named squad, the Gallagher Last Place Team in the C league's southern division, who are in the league cellar. Although they haven't won a game yet, they're still out there playing and having fun.

PUMA PRINTS

Crowley To Be Honored

Tom Crowley, one of the 1960's top two-sport athletes at Saint Joseph's College, will be inducted into the SJC Sports Hall of Fame here Saturday. A 1966 alumnus with a bachelor's degree in accounting, Crowley starred in basketball as a guard and in baseball as an infielder-catcher for the Pumas.

Looking back on his college career, Crowley has no trouble singling out his top thrill as a Saint Joe athlete. That moment came Jan. 27, 1965, when he scored 18 points, including the game-winning basket, with four seconds to play in a monumental 61-59 upset of defending NCAA champion Cincinnati.

"I have absolutely no regrets about the fact that almost all of my time at Saint Joseph's was devoted to either academics or athletics," Crowley says. "I took both of these items seriously. During my years on Saint Joe teams, we played against many great teams and great players, and I always found this to be very thrilling, rewarding and fulfilling."

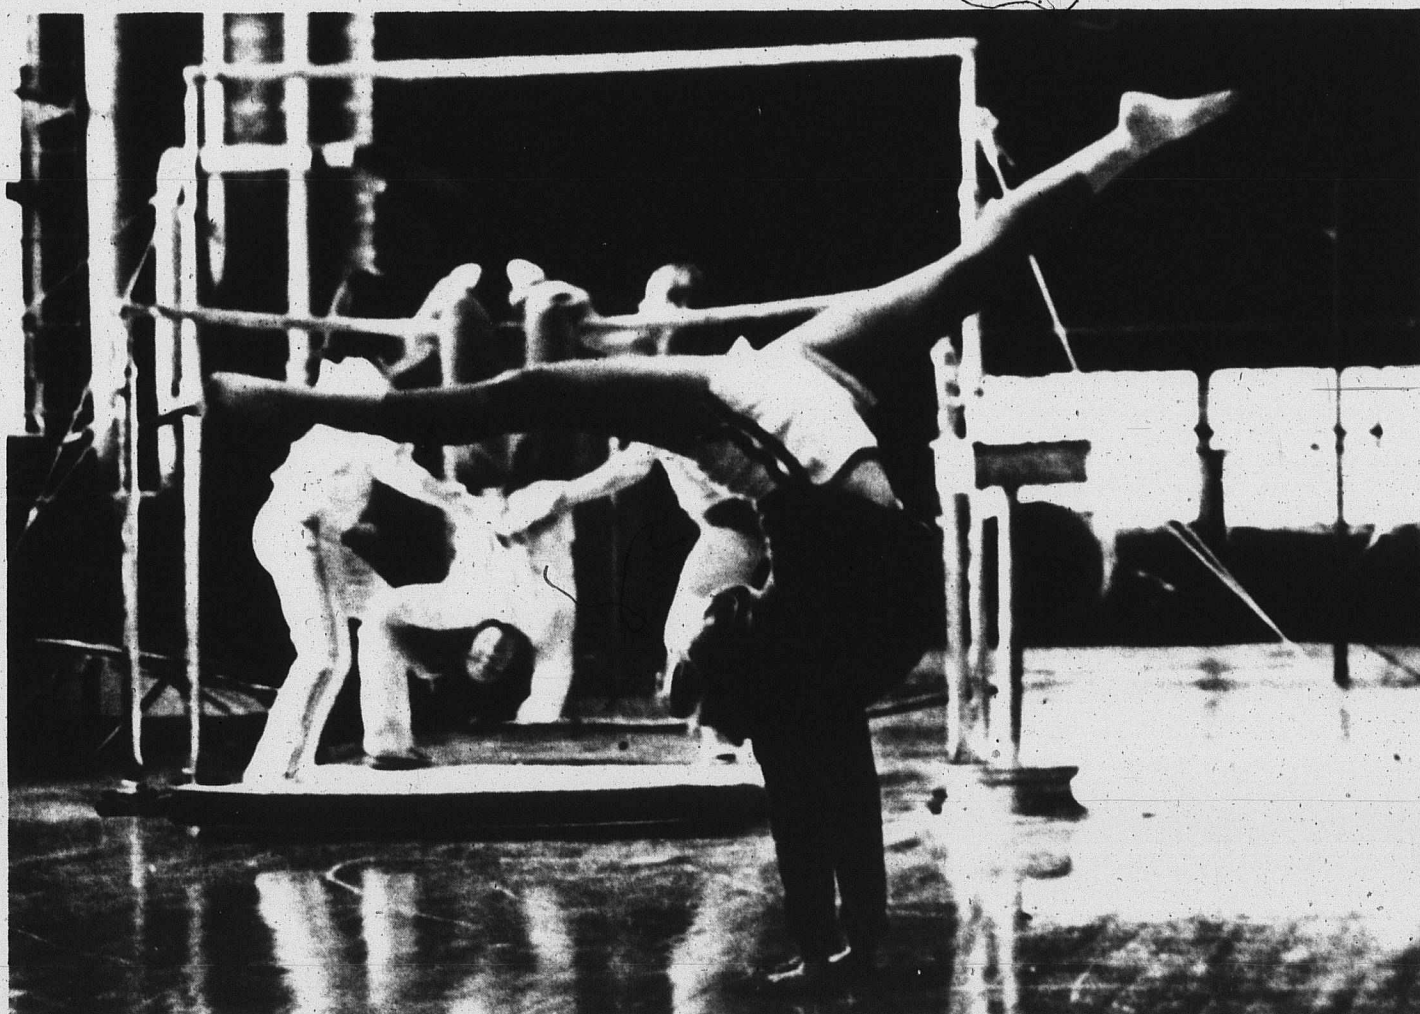

Though basketball and baseball are totally different sports, Crowley believes they fit nicely into his personal athletic scheme of things.

"Basketball was always a more pressurized sport in which we regularly competed against scholarship athletes," Crowley recalls. "By its very nature, basketball is taken quite seriously, while in baseball, the idea is more to play loose and have fun. Basketball is more intense; baseball is more relaxed."

Crowley adds that it's hard to beat the timing of the two sports—he always found himself in fine physical condition for baseball as a result of the just-completed basketball season.

Crowley owned the distinction of being the captain of the basketball team in his junior and senior years, as well as baseball captain as a senior. In addition, he was most valuable player in both sports during his junior year.

As a senior, he won all-Indiana Collegiate Conference honors as a catcher, just two months after he was an honorable mention selection to the league's all-star basketball team.

Puma gymnast Laurie Shover (fr.-Jus.) practices a floor exercise routine in the fieldhouse balcony, while in the background coach Rosalie Wendling, Beth Janecke (fr.-Jus.) and Lisa Elliott (jr.-Hal.) prepare for upcoming matches. The gymnastics team represents Saint Joe's newest club sport.

Panelists Highlight Women's Day '78

Women's Day '78, which will attempt to show what it is like for a woman in the business world, will be presented by the business club Monday, and will be highlighted by an informal panel discussion with women from the business world.

Panelists include Carol Barrett, assistant director of the placement office at Purdue University; Angela DiCinzo, a security analyst at Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner, & Smith, Inc.; Wanda Reimann, manager of recruitment at Quaker Oats Company; and Millie Tait, president of Per Pak Corporation and a member of Saint Joseph's Board of Trustees.

"The purpose of the program is to present students with a view of the business world for women," comments Mary Pat Hartnett (jr.-Jus.), secretary of the business club.

Activities for the day include talks to business classes at 10 and 11 a.m., and the informal panel discussion in the Justin Hall second-floor lounge from 1 until 3 p.m.

During the panel discussion, the speakers will relate their experiences in the business world and offer advice and guidelines to follow upon leaving college and entering the business field. This discussion is open to all; students are encouraged to attend.

Women's Day '78 will conclude with a film, "Women in Management," to be shown at 9 p.m. in the Justin Hall lounge.

Snow, snow everywhere! That has been the dominant outdoor scene around the campus since late January when the blizzard of '78 plus subsequent snowfalls have created and maintained "mountain-range" drifts like this one at various places on the campus.

health center, it seems to me that there should be some provision made by campus authorities in the event that a student became deathly ill and needed emergency transportation.

This problem deserves the immediate and serious attention of the entire campus community. Should such emergencies occur before feasible solutions can be found? Who will be blamed? I hope that no one will have to bear this fault.

Sincerely,
Sick and Tired

Dear Editor,

Last September and early October, the campus was bombarded with posters and signs of all kinds during the freshman elections, in the efforts of winning votes for the candidates. Even though all the posters and signs were disposed of very quickly after the voting, there was too much advertising. I feel this campaign pollution looked ugly and obstructed the scenery of the campus while the elections lasted.

In March, the SA will be holding its elections. Must we go through this exhibition again? I am not against the candidates' right to use whatever fair means there are to become elected, but the

A college education was never intended to be easily gained. Now and in the future, Saint Joseph's College must remain and progress as a learning, growing institution. But our learning experiences must never be restricted to the classroom alone.

I sincerely hope that the candidates will be sensible enough to avoid a repeat of the past elections, and that the better candidate wins without going overboard with propaganda that obstructs the campus.

Any biology student can affirm that a virus is not classified as either dead or living. It cannot exist on its own. The time has come that we learn to assert ourselves as the majority of the college community. That virus which affects us all can be brought under control.

Alumni Offer Experience At Career Day Mar. 6

Saint Joseph's placement office is sponsoring a "Liberal Arts Career Day" Monday, Mar. 6, in which alumni will discuss what kinds of jobs they were eligible for with a liberal arts degree from SJC.

Beth Pellicciotti, director of placement, says "the purpose of the liberal arts career day is to show how Saint Joseph alumni have used their degrees in a variety of career fields. Students from all majors are invited to meet these alumni and discuss their own career plans."

Liberal arts degrees include: English, history, political science, communications, and the sciences and fine arts.

"The field careers include law, advertising, public relations, scientific research, library science, journalism and business management," says Mrs. Pellicciotti.

Alumni will attend classes between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. along with a student host. At 2 p.m., there will be a panel discussion in the Raleigh Hall conference room entitled "How Saint Joe degrees helped alumni find jobs." Following the discussions will be a social hour and then a dinner for participants and invited faculty.

Social Preview

By T. TILLER and D. CLARK

Oh boy! The situation is getting tense as the second half of the semester rolls around. Very soon we shall see what disaster will happen when Father Banet (bulletin bulletinbulletin)—this introduction has just become one of the many unfortunates stricken by that dastardly commie-pinko-fag flu. It will resume next issue.)

For relief from your tensions and anxieties, consult the following list of activities designed for student relaxation.

Saturday, Feb. 25, mixer — featuring The Pearl Handle Band, 9 p.m. - 12:30 a.m., ballroom.

A four-piece act from Chicago fronted by "Big George," the bear-like guitarist and vocalist (who reportedly keeps his voice conditioned by eating at least ten tacos a day). Specializes in southern rock with a western flavor.

Sunday, Feb. 26, movie — My Fair Lady, 10:30 p.m., auditorium.

Based on G.B. Shaw's classic play, Pygmalion, the story sees an English professor taking a Cockney flower seller and teaching her the manner of the gentry.

Rex Harrison as Professor Higgins, and Audrey Hepburn as Eliza Dolittle (the flower girl), both turn in superb performances. The songs, which include "I Could Have Danced All Night" and "I've Grown Accustomed To Her Face," are alone worth seeing the movie for.

Wednesday, Mar. 1, SA social event—To be announced.

Saturday, Mar. 4, mixer — featuring Street Kids, 9 p.m. - 12:30 a.m., ballroom.

This band plays high-energy rock with superb musicianship, good technical production and special effects.

Sunday, Mar. 5, movie — Mahogany, 10:30 p.m., auditorium.

A not-too-thrilling movie dealing with the rise of a model (Diana Ross), and her troubles with her boyfriend (Billy Dee Williams), and her photographer (Tony Perkins). Soundtrack is great, especially the theme, which is excellent as sung by Diana Ross.

Wolfe, Scott Appointed Co-Directors Of Band

Henry Wolfe and Charles Scott, new part-time SJC faculty members, have assumed the directorship of the college band. This move was necessitated upon the resignation of Paul Fitch, former lecturer in music and part-time faculty member at Saint Joseph's.

Wolfe, band director at Rensselaer Central High School, was a faculty member at Tell City, Ind., before coming to Rensselaer. He received his bachelor of arts degree from Indiana State University and his master's degree from Ball State University. He will give private lessons in his major instrument, the trumpet. Wolfe's brass ensemble will meet on Thursdays at 4 p.m.

Scott received both his bachelor of arts and master's degrees from Ball State while teaching at Kankakee Valley High School. He is a percussion major and also will give private lessons. His applied percussion ensemble will hold its sessions on Mondays from 4-5:30 p.m.

These ensembles were created due to an absence of woodwind players in the old band. According to Dr. John Egan, music department chairman, the ensembles are progressing nicely.

Pearl Handle Band will perform Saturday at 9 p.m. in the Halleck Center ballroom during a mixer sponsored by the junior class. The mixer will run through 12:30 a.m.
